Island Energy Services Expands Storm Relief Efforts
With Donation of Fuel to O‘ahu’s North Shore Communities

The Hawai‘i-based energy company provides critical fuel support to recovery efforts in Hale‘iwa and Waialua, and partners with customers to raise up to $100,000 for American Red Cross Hawai‘i Flood Relief Fund

Kapolei, Hawai‘i – March 25, 2026 – Island Energy Services (IES) is expanding its support for communities impacted by recent Kona Low storms by donating fuel to aid community-based volunteer teams and individuals supporting the recovery efforts in the Hale‘iwa and Waialua areas.

Today, IES will provide gasoline in coordination with community partners supporting cleanup and restoration efforts. The donated fuel will support volunteer and community-led recovery efforts as impacted areas begin to stabilize.

“When our communities are hit hard, IES has a responsibility to show up, not just as a fuel provider, but as a neighbor,” said Jon Mauer, President and CEO of Island Energy Services. “The North Shore communities of Hale‘iwa and Waialua are resilient, and we want to make sure the volunteers on the ground have what they need to keep that recovery moving forward.”

This fuel donation builds on IES’ broader commitment to disaster response across Hawai‘i. IES also recently announced it is increasing its ongoing American Red Cross fundraising match from $20,000 to $50,000 and is calling on customers to help reach a combined goal of $100,000 in disaster relief funding. Through the end of April, IES will match all customer donations made at participating Texaco locations, dollar for dollar, up to $50,000. Together with the IES company contribution, the campaign aims to direct $100,000 to Red Cross flood relief efforts statewide.
